Now then, we have present with us this morning--going back over a period of 40 years--one or two men I see right here, who were present at the time and helped make that Pharmacy Law in 1880. And by the way, the State Board of Health and the State Pharmaceutical Association were both formed that winter. So, as far as priority was concerned, one has no priority over the other one. We have with us Prof. Boerner of Iowa City, of the School of Pharmacy there. He was one of these men present at the organization of these associations. He knows something about the passage of the Pharmacy Law in 1880. I would like to have him explain to us if the men at that time didn't have in mind the public safety, the public health, and one of their aims was that the people should be safeguarded against the adulteration of drugs. I would like to hear from Prof. Boerner. (Applause.) Mr. Boerner: Gentlemen: I think I can answer that question all right by saying that the law of that day clearly points to the intent and purpose of the pharmacists of that time. I was present at the time of the drafting of the first law. I had a hand in it. But to a large extent that law was patterned after a law that was passed in the state of New York,...
