Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Mary Eleanor Wilkins Freeman was born in Randolph, Massachusetts on October 31st, 1852. Her parents, Eleanor Lothrop and Warren Edward Wilkins, originally baptized her Mary Ella. They were orthodox Congregationalists and brought Mary up very strictly, a theme which Mary used in her works throughout her career. The family moved to Brattleboro, Vermont, in 1867, from where Mary graduated from the local high school before continuing her education at Mount Holyoke Female Seminary in South Hadley, Massachusetts, for the year 1870-71. She later finished her education at Glenwood Seminary in West Brattleboro. The family went through straitened times in 1873 when their dry-goods store closed down and the family returned to Randolph. Mary s mother died in 1876 and in her memory Mary added Eleanor to her name. She had begun writing verse and stories for children whilst still a teenager and these early submissions proved successful. Her first short story to be published was The Ghost Story in 1881 after it won a short story competition. By interlacing elements of the supernatural with domestic realism she had hit upon a solid formula for success. Mary s father died in 1883, leaving her with no immediate family and a small estate worth less than a thousand dollars. This was the pivotal moment when Mary, in need of an income, decided her writing skills would give her the best opportunity. Indeed her best work was to flow from her pen over the next decade whilst she still lived in Randolph. In her career she published more than two dozen volumes of short stories and novels. She is best known for two collections; A Humble Romance and Other Stories (1887) and A New England Nun and...
