Green Supply Chain
Management: An approach towards Sustainability

Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: LAP Lambert Academic Publishing | During last decades, environmental protection by industrial and manufacturing sectors is progressively becoming a popular issue. Additionally, government has formulated certain rules and regulations relating to environment, which need to be adopted by these sectors for survival. Numerous awareness programs by educational institutes, government and non government agencies etc. are also motivating to realize the manufacturers about the importance of providing green products produced by using green practices. The main intention of...
