Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .For many, this world is a perpetual half-way point, a cash strapped twilight between limitless dreams, and an even greater apathy to grasp them. A nowhere city, between the familiar troubled beginning and the universal overdue destination. On the plus side this maddening middle turns out to be a worthy world to write about. Sea sores is a debut collection of modern poetry in which Brighton and the sea, are recurring themes. The energetic city is situated at the fault line between England and the continent, between economic progress and economic stagnation, the place where sea, sky and land combine. A place where the counter point of the isolate country-side against the vibrant inner-city create a tension and energy, that has attracted many an outsider to call Brighton home. It is a fairly large collection of fragments, that when read as a whole or in part aim to create a sense of place and time. The work in these 250 pages explores themes of family, work, relationships and the natural world. It also deals with the anonymous reality of living in today...
