But, I was then informed that the profits from that trade had been from 1 to 40() , 000l. a year; which during the nineteen years of the Charter, taking the Honourable Director s (Mr.Grant) own statement, would have been 3,800,000l. sterling in 19 years; certainly a considerable sum, and capable of affording very important aid. Differing entirely from the Honourable Director (Mr. Grant) on this subject, I shall afterwards endeavour to lay before this Court the data from which I have formed contrary conclusions, and it will then be able to judge between us. The Chairman and Deputy, in their letter of the 15th of January, declare, that the trade to India is of little consequence; and yet, in the General Court, they state that it is of importance as an item of income. I am, by subsequent explanation, inclined to think they meant that the importance of the trade is only to be allowed, in as far as it is a link between Great Britain and her Indian possessions; and, if the opening of the trade could, by possibility, break that chain, I should pause before I entertained the plan for one moment. The opening of the trade has been pronounced by the Court of Directors, in their letters of the 15th of April, and 30th of December, 1812, to bring into view questions of the last importance to the safety of the British Empire in India, and of the...
